Introduction

Leonardo da Vinci

Leonardo da Vinci (15 April 1452 – 2 May 1519) was a very talented person from Italy during the High Renaissance. He was known for many things—he was a painter, a drawer, an engineer, a scientist, a thinker, a sculptor, and an architect.

At first, he became famous for his amazing paintings, but he also left behind many notebooks filled with drawings and ideas about many subjects like the human body, space, plants, maps, and science.

Leonardo is seen as a genius and a great example of the Renaissance idea of a well-rounded person. His work had a huge impact on future artists, and only Michelangelo, who lived at the same time, is considered to have had a similar influence.

Two of his Most Famous Paintings

- Mona Lisa
- The Last Supper

Mona Lisa

The Mona Lisa is a half-length portrait painted by the Italian artist Leonardo da Vinci. It is seen as a perfect example of art from the Italian Renaissance.

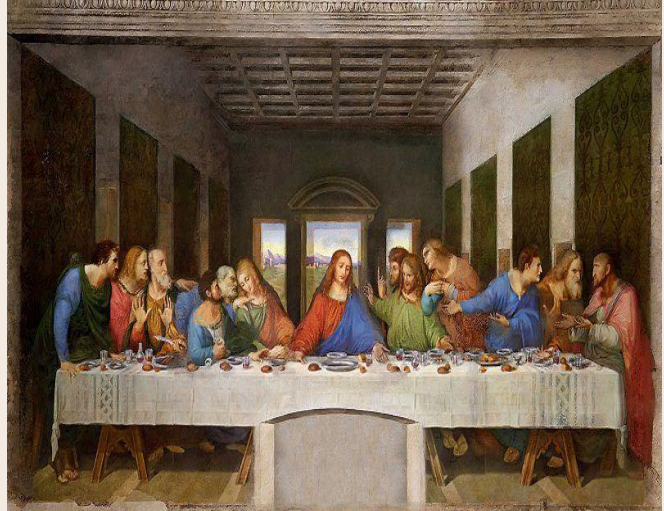

People say it is the most famous, most visited, most talked about, most sung about, and most copied painting in the world.

- This painting is special because of:
- The woman's mysterious smile
- The large and balanced composition
- The soft and realistic shapes
- The background that looks misty and real

The Last Supper

The Last Supper (in Italian: Il Cenacolo or L'Ultima Cena) is a large wall painting by the famous Italian artist Leonardo da Vinci. He painted it between 1495 and 1498. The painting is located in the dining hall of a church called Santa Maria delle Grazie in Milan, Italy.

It shows the moment during Jesus' Last Supper with his 12 disciples, right after he says, "One of you will betray me."

This painting is famous for:

- How Leonardo shows space and depth
- The realistic movement of the people
- The strong emotions on each person's face
- Because of these features, it became one of the most well-known paintings in the Western world and one of Leonardo's greatest works. Some experts also say it marks the beginning of a new period in art called the High Renaissance
